NauticEd Releases Coastal Navigation Sailing Lesson

You are sailing along in Long Island Sound on heading 61° Mag. Your knot meter reads 5 knots. You are passing Horton Point Light to your starboard. At 1548, a hand held bearing shows that the bearing to Horton Point Light is 119° Mag. At 1605, the bearing to Horton Point Light is 160° Mag. Can you determine your position?

Today, NauticEd announced the release of the Captain Ed Mapes' NauticEd Coastal Navigation Clinic.

Grant Headifen, Founder of NauticEd said "Much of the course was based on the requirement of the United States Coast Guard for its Commercial Captain's License and so this is an extensive Navigation Course yet written for all levels to easily grasp its concepts".

In the online clinic students will gain an understanding of

- ATONs - day shapes. USA and International
- ATONs lights including animated images to show you what the lights actually look like.
- Navigational Charts including videos on how to use the navigational tools with these charts
- Position fixing – including 3 bearing fixes, Dead reckoning, Estimated fixes, Running fixes.
- Simple ways to remember and convert Compass and Magnetic readings to True
- Calculating your set and drift
- Determining your heading based on known set and drift, and leeway due to wind.
- Current and tides. Reading Tide tables.

In Module 5, there are plenty of practice exercises so that students can gain confidence when doing the test.

AND as a BONUS – Module 6 shows students how to set up a fun GPS Treasure Hunt Picnic in your local park or on a deserted island.

The clinic uses quality multimedia videos to assist gaining a simple understanding of each concept.

Such courses go for hundreds of dollars. With NauticEd, students can now learn Coastal Navigation for only $39. The sailing lesson is required for the NauticEd Bareboat Charter Master Rank. As with all NauticEd classes, students can return to brush up at anytime for free.
